ARMED BANDITS GET $40,000 IN HOLD-UP OF PHILA. BANK; HOLD PEDESTRIANS AT BAY

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 20.—(INS)—Eleven armed bandits entering the City National Bank and Trust Company, 70th street and Allenwood avenue, escaped shortly before noon today with between $35,000 and $40,000 in cash and securities.

While five of the desperadoes held pedestrians and motorists at bay in the street, six of the men entered the banking institution. Then they locked two policemen, several employees and six depositors in the vaults. After raiding the bank, taking all available monies, the sextet made a hurried exit, leaped into the three waiting automobiles with their five comrades, and made away. No one pursued. The securities were placed in two suit cases.

The eleven bandits were armed with shotguns and pistols. The two officers who were locked in the vault were relieved of their guns.

The bandit gang drove up to a rear entrance shortly before noon and became acquainted with the location and showed no fear of passing pedestrians or motorists, police said. They then encountered a policeman, Martin Kildron, and Special Officer Alford Rohdy. Both were forced to hand over their pistols and with the other persons in the bank, consisting of a Tellier and Assistant Cashier, Horace Alexander and three clerks and a girl, were lined up against a wall. No effort was made to search the victims or take their personal effects.

One man who appeared to be in charge ordered the prisoners to march into the vault. This was done. The bandit then closed the door, ordering his aides to speed up the looting of the institution.

They then went to the Tellers' cages and cleaned out the cash drawers while some of their companions brought two cases from the waiting machine and the money was hurriedly dumped into the cases, while they yelled to their companions to join them. All fled into the three cars waiting outside and drove away, while residents of the neighborhood called the police. The crowd which had been held at bay outside of the bank opened the vault door and liberated those inside. Alexander who is in charge of the branch office said no large sum was kept at the office but that the loss would exceed $35,000. All of the amount was covered by insurance.

FOLLOWS "PAL" TO JAIL

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 20.—(INS)—What is life without a "pal," Charles Woodworth, 57, asked a magistrate here who had just sent his friend and fellow pan-handler for years, George O'Dare, 54, to the county jail for 30 days. He told the peace officer that he might as well go to work. Wouldn't he send him to the "jug," too? And the obliging magistrate gave in. Woodworth joined his pal—for the regulation 30 days.

BOOZE CLUB TRIAL TAKES SUDDEN TURN

Steward Appears and Takes the "Rap" to Let the Guests Off

IS HELD UNDER BAIL

Trial of the six men caught in a raid on the Crescent Club, Haunted Lane, Croydon, on the night of March 7th, took a sudden turn last night as it was being held before Justice of Peace, Edward Lynn, in Municipal police court.

The group caught in the raid had fortified itself with six half barrels of beer and another one on tap and settled down for a week-end party at the club house. The officers walked in unexpectedly and when no one would declare himself proprietor but all claimed membership, the entire six were placed under arrest.

On the night of the raid the group was held for a further hearing March 19th and the case was resumed last evening.

Howard I. James appeared as attorney for the defendants and Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo and Trooper Christ, Morrisville State Police, conducted their own case.

The six arrested had testified and had denied their previous statements to the effect that they were members. At the trial they all claimed that they were merely guests at the club, having been invited there by William McClarity, 1816 East West Moreland street, Philadelphia. None of them knew where the beer came from, who paid for it and how.

As the last witness was to take the stand there came a sudden turn to the case. McClarity was produced by the defendants' attorney and took the stand. He admitted that he was the steward of the club, that he had possession of the beer and said that he had bought it from a man who came along peddling it. He admitted that he illegally had possession of the beer which tested out 4.76 per cent.

The appearance of McClarity resulted in the dropping of the charges against the six members or guests and the drawing up of a new warrant preferring the charges against McClarity. He was held in $500 bail for court.

It was intimated about the court room that McClarity was produced in order to save the member-guests from going to jail.

The witnesses testified that all that they were doing when the officers raided the place was drinking beer and singing old time songs. "It was quite a quartette, you had," said Russo. "Yes, it was pretty good," commented one of the group.

It was previously explained by the officers that complaints have been made about the place and the actions of those frequenting it.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION GAINS IN THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN REGION WITH SEVERAL NOTABLE EXPANSIONS DURING PAST YEAR

Air Passenger Traffic Increased More Than 400% During the Year, It is Estimated—Believe That Increase During 1931 Will Exceed Even This Figure

In this, the third of a series of articles dealing with the progress of aviation in the United States, an excellent idea of the flying situation in the Rocky Mountain Region is given.

By Michael F. Dacey

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
DENVER, Colo., Mar. 20.—Commercial aviation in Denver enjoyed a remarkable expansion during 1930, when the air passenger companies operating out of the city increased their yearly mileage by more than 1,000 per cent.

During 1930, Midcontinent Air Express from Denver to Cheyenne and Denver to Pueblo, flew 145,000 miles, and United States Airways, Denver to Kansas City, flew about 600,000 miles, making a total of 1,627,000 miles flown in and out of Denver during the year, an increase of 1,482,000 miles, or more than 1,000 per cent over 1929.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Sellersville Man is Awarded $400 Damages—Band To Have Anniversary

MONEY FOR HOSPITAL

Councilman Herman F. Winger, of Sellersville, was awarded $400 damages, which he claims is due his property on North Main street at a special meeting of Town Council on Monday night.

The damage was caused at the time of the erection of the Reading bridge in 1929, but the award is subject to approval of the County Commissioners before it can be paid.

Mr. Winger was forced to re-grade his entire front yard and had to have a new concrete pavement laid.

The question of raising water rates in the borough as a result of heavy expenses which the drought incurred was brought up and definitely decided in the negative. Although the expenditures for the water system last year were $3,000, the investigating committee of the water board found that the majority of the work done came under the head of permanent improvements and thus will lessen the borough's expenses in the coming years.

A few of the projects completed last year are as follows: Deepening and cleaning the Catch Basin, purchase and installation of new water pump, new water line extensions to Park avenue, Clymer avenue and High street, payment of concrete bridge on Church street and grading of the approaches to it, street repairs and oiling, payment of damage claims, new borough lights and new culvert on Maple avenue.

In observance of its 25th anniversary, the Citizens' Band of Quakertown will render a concert in the high school auditorium here on Sunday afternoon, March 22, at 2.30.

Worman Shelly is leader and manager of the band and Clifford Aftersbach is president. William Brey is treasurer and Otto Mease secretary.

The program to be given Sunday afternoon will be as follows:

March, "From Tropic to Tropic," Alexander; overture, "Tancred," G. Rossini; selection, "The Velvet Lady," Victor Herbert; euphonium solo, "Pearl of the Ocean," Hoch, Henry Crespi; waltz, "Southern Roses," Joh. Strauss; address, Fred Krauss; selection, "Orpheus," J. Offenbach; ballet, "Music and Soldiers March from William Tell," Rossini; fantasia, "The Grand Duchess," J. Offenbach; march, "Peace Chimes," Frank Setzer.

Representative Wilson L. Yeakey, of Bucks county, introduced a bill in the House, to provide for $25,000 appropriation for Quakertown Community Hospital.

Rev. Joseph Murray Is Speaker at Rotary Club

The Rev. Joseph Murray, assistant rector of St. Mark's Church, here, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club yesterday afternoon in the Elks Home.

The speaker took as his topic: "St. Patrick." Rev. Murray spoke briefly but gave a very graphic account of the life of St. Patrick. "He was not an Irishman," he said.

The speaker then told of the wonderful work done by St. Patrick and what he accomplished for Ireland. He told of the great influence which he exerted upon the people and of the huge number of his followers.

St. Patrick was born in Dunbarton, 355 and at 16 was captured and taken to Ireland where he remained as a slave until he reached the age of 21. He then escaped and went to France and studied and later entered the priesthood.

Air passenger traffic, it is estimated, increased more than 400 per cent during the year. That the increase for 1931 will exceed that of 1930 is indicated in figures released by Midcontinent Air Express, which reveal that passengers leaving Denver in January, 1931, increased 62 percent over passengers leaving Denver in December, 1930.

Airplane passengers in and out of Denver in the first months of 1931 averaged about 25, more than double the number carried in 1930, and four times as many as were carried in 1929.

Air mail poundage on the Cheyenne-Denver-Pueblo route of Western Air Express increased 11 per cent during 1930.

There are four airports in Denver, the municipal field, used by Western Air, Midcontinent and U. S. Airways; the Moreau Flying Service, Brooks Flying Service and the Western Flying Service; Lory field, home of the 120th Observation squadron, Colorado National Guard (equipped for night landings with boundary lights, but has no flood lights), Colorado Airways field, owned and operated by Colorado Airways (does not have lighting apparatus for night flying), and Curtiss field, owned and operated by the Curtiss Flying Service (has lighting for night landings).

The Denver municipal airport is one of four in the entire United States to receive a rating of A-1-A by the department of commerce, the highest rating possible. The field is one mile square and is equipped with latest lighting equipment for night flying, a large hangar, work shop, three-story passenger depot building, in which are located radio equipment, offices, a large waiting room and a restaurant.

The field will be improved this spring with a new hangar, shop, dope room, garage and store building.

According to the department of commerce, in a recent air commerce bulletin, Colorado has a total of seventy-four aircraft, and ninety-seven gliders, while there are 147 licensed pilots (Continued on Page 3)

MISS O'HARA SPEAKS AT WOMEN'S MEETING

Deputy Attorney General Is Surprise Speaker at Political Gathering

75 WOMEN ATTEND

(By Staff Correspondent)

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 20.—A delightful surprise was in store for those of the Bucks County Council of Republican Women who gathered in the community house, here, yesterday afternoon, when Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, deputy attorney general of Pennsylvania, and president of the state council of Republican Women, appeared as one of the speakers.

The session, scheduled primarily for political education purposes, attracted 75 women, whose thirst for knowledge of advance along certain legislative lines, and desire for better understanding of certain projects was satisfied.

"The A. B. C's of Politics" were gone into, and each speaker gave helpful information, and good food for thought.

Miss O'Hara, introduced by Mrs. John W. Cooper, of Pineville, president of the county council, found a most attentive audience. She told the women: "Until you have caught the attention of the indifferent and made them feel certain problems are very vital to them, they may waste votes, misuse them, or not use them at all."

"Any organization that seeks to be practical in belief must be practical in development of its policies."

The advance in the laws which eliminate mental cases from the criminal class was cited by the state president. The significance of Bucks County's position in the affairs of Pennsylvania was mentioned. "I have a mental picture of Bucks County as composed of communities of home-loving people, with backgrounds of honest regard for needs of their communities," was one of the remarks set forth by Miss O'Hara. Congratulating the county members on having well-informed and interested chairmen of the several organization committees the speaker said: "You are of service and worth to your county, and the county is thereby progressing."

In order to arouse a sense of responsibility as citizens, and in the discussion of situations to help them to vote knowingly, was this meeting of women held.

A most lucid resume of the work of the present legislature by Mrs. William R. Stuckert, of Newtown, president of the legislative committee of the county, was another enjoyable address of the afternoon.

In stating that now it is not only party fighting party, but faction opposing another faction in the same party, Mrs. Stuckert said in her opinion

The authorities are still working on the case.

EXCHANGE CLUB DINES ON FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Delightful Affair Held Last Evening for Members and Guests

REV. BOSWELL SPEAKS

The anniversary banquet held last evening by members of the Bristol Exchange Club, their wives and guests, was a dual celebration in that it marked the fifth anniversary of the club and the 20th anniversary of National Exchange. The affair was held in the Travel Club Home on Cedar street.

The very delicious menu, which was served by the Wright-Inn Restaurant, was as follows: Fruit cocktail, tomato soup, roast turkey, filling, Parisienne potatoes, peas, cranberry sauce, rolls, celery, olives, Russian salad, ice cream and coffee. The tables were very attractively decorated, large baskets of flowers gracing each one. Each lady was presented with a double compact.

Following the banquet the club president, John H. Hardy, welcomed the members, their wives and guests.

The program of entertainment was opened with a contralto solo, "Spring's A Lovely Lady" (Elliott), and "If You Have A Sweetheart," Mrs. Russell Johnson.

The speaker of the evening, the Rev. George E. Boswell, was introduced, and gave a most inspiring and interesting address. Miss Hilda MacArthur rendered a piano solo, "Wedding Day at Trole Lagen" (Grieg), following which Minot J. Hill, president of the Bristol Rotary Club, was called upon and addressed the gathering briefly. Two bass solos were given by Mr. Andrew MacArthur, "Asleep in the Deep" and "Father O'Flynn." Mr. MacArthur was accompanied by his daughter.

In presenting the next speaker, President Hardy stated he had been pleasantly surprised earlier in the afternoon, upon being informed that Mr. Charles McGuire, of Erie Exchange and State President of Pennsylvania Affiliated Exchange, would be a guest at the fifth annual banquet. Mr. McGuire expressed extreme pleasure in being present on this occasion and spoke at length on the ideals of Exchange. "The Exchange Club is the most ideal organization I know of, because of its democracy," stated the speaker. "Any man who joins Exchange for what he gets out of it will be disappointed, for gentlemen, you cannot get out of anything, more than you put into it," continued the speaker.

NOW ORGANIZING SAFETY PATROL IN SCHOOLS HERE

Superintendent McGee and School Authorities Are Co-operating

TO GUARD CHILDREN

Patrols Will Be Formed In Every School Building in Borough

A Safety Patrol, composed of boys from all schools of Bristol, is being formed under the direction of Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee.

Superintendent McGee is bending every effort to make this project a success; and for some time he and Howard E. James, superintendent of the Bristol public schools, have been making plans whereby such a patrol could be formed.

The patrol in the Wood street school building commenced functioning last week; and work in connection with such at the Jefferson avenue building started today. Within a few weeks it is expected that similar groups will be functioning in every school in the borough.

At the last meeting of the executive committee of the Fathers' Association of the Bristol public schools, Superintendent McGee placed his plans as outlined by he and Mr. James before the said committee, and this body was unanimous in its support of the movement.

"The appalling number of casualties, resulting from motor and other vehicular accidents make regular, continuous safety instructions in the school necessary," says Superintendent McGee. "The great number of children who are injured or killed has stirred municipal, state and national bodies to greater activity in order to safeguard the youth of today—the worker of tomorrow."

Continuing, Mr. McGee states: "The education system is the ideal medium through which the proper ideas of safety can be impressed upon the plastic mind of youth, and parents are urged to co-operate with the authorities to safeguard the lives of their children by lecturing them on 'Safety first, last and all the time.'"

Each patrol is made up of a captain, two lieutenants, two, three, or four squads, according to the size of the school. The members of the patrol are selected by the principal and teachers. Captain is appointed by the principal; and the lieutenants are named by the captain. Meetings will be held by each group, once a week, at which time all safety violations are reported, and all cases disposed of and reported to the principal if necessary. The captain trains the guards, drills them so as to develop morale, create proper spirit, and give the patrol a snappy military bearing.

There will be no interference with the regular school activities.

Gamble Concert Party To Broadcast On Monday

At 4.30 p. m., Monday, the Ernest Gamble Concert Party, well known here, will broadcast over Station WLIT, Philadelphia.

The program will consist of "Songs of Other Days." The music is from the period of more than a century ago when fiery Andrew Jackson was president of these United States, before the Mexican War, before the Gold Rush to California, when pioneers were pressing westward in covered Conestoga wagons, when people traveled by stage coach and canal boat, when speed was personified by the pony express.

Mrs. John Hunter, of Bath street, was a guest over Saturday and Sunday of her sister, Mrs. Annie Milburne, of Hamilton Square, N. J.

NEW DEAN OF THE SENATE

Retirement of Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, of North Carolina, from the United States Senate after 30 years' service transfers to the shoulders of Senator Reed Smoot, Utah, the mantle of dean of the Senate. The senator from Utah will have been in the Senate 30 years at the end of his present term next year.

Even before Senator Smoot succeeded to the crown of the North Carolinian he was recognized as having the broadest and most extensive experience in legislative work of any man in the upper branch of Congress. For one score years and eight he has given his entire time and energy to the work of the Senate.

Senator Smoot is best known for his work as chairman of the Senate finance committee, which has won him the sobriquet of the "watchdog of the treasury," and for his thorough knowledge of the tariff question. He is the outstanding exponent of the protective principle, although representing a western state.

He has ever been a party man, a "regular Republican," standing as a pillar of strength for his party since the inception of the insurgent movement. It is significant in this connection that he furnished the necessary two-thirds majority for the adoption of the Panama Canal Treaty during the Roosevelt administration.

There are more "youngsters" in the Senate trying to emulate Senator Smoot than there are imitating that brand of senatorship commonly known as Republican insurgents. For which the people give thanks.

PROVINCIAL RAILROADS

Until the transcontinental air transports began operating there was no such thing as direct transportation from coast to coast or between the North and South. Freight and passengers must change from one railroad system to another and often must make two or three such changes in traveling great distances in the United States.

The traveler is little inconvenienced by this arrangement, but for freight shipments it means delay and extra expense.

The shipper of freight finds that his greatest handicap in transcontinental transportation is the fact that his shipment must be handled by two or more roads and pass through the same number of terminal companies, all of which means delay and heavy handling costs.

From the shipper's viewpoint the need for intersectional consolidation of railroads is more urgent than that for sectional mergers. He is not so much interested in the problems of competition of the roads as he is in expediting long hauls and reducing freight rates.

America has produced the greatest railroad builders and promoters in the world and yet none has succeeded in binding East and West or North and South by a single ribbon of steel under one name.

Sentiment is greater than wealth, a financier says. But not so readily negotiable.

Things work out all right. As the prisons get fuller the churches get emptier so they can be used for the overflow.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST" By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

The body of Baroness von Wiese is found in the garden of Eagle's Nest, Emily Hardy's palatial country home, wrapped in Mary Frost's shawl. Preceding her murder, the Baroness had given a note to the butler. This he denies. She had also quarreled with her maid, Mary Frost, returning for her shawl, at midnight, saw it on Laura Allan. Laura, however, claims Mary entered the garden wearing the shawl. —Bill Martin, young newspaper reporter, fiancée of Assistant Police Chief Walter Vance, learns Laura was responsible for the broken engagement of her own sister and Ted Frost, Mary's husband. Ted had also flirted with the Baroness. "Bim" observing the butler dancing, wonders about him. She learns from Carl Carey, New York reporter, that the Baroness was Margot Belle, famous dancer. The supposed stolen jewels of the Baroness are found in the Baron's care.

CHAPTER XXVI

WALTER headed his list, as Carl Carey had done, with the names of Peter and Emily Hardy and the Baron von Wiese and after bracketing the three together, checked them off.

"Their stories click," he remarked. "Separately and together and the butler bears them out. The three of them were pow-wowing from the time the last guest left—the last but Mrs. Frost, that is—and William was around more or less all the time serving highballs and emptying ash trays and finally fixing them up with sandwiches.

"Hardy and the Baroness settled in the library around eleven o'clock according to all accounts and never moved till I got there near two. Mrs. Hardy was here and there till she joined them about twelve but by piecing together all the stories we've got her accounted for; she wasn't out of sight more than three or four minutes at a time all evening. And the Baron's gout was bona fide; he couldn't have moved if he'd wanted to."

On the Job

"And the butler?" "He was on the job, according to Mrs. Hardy. She's ready to swear that he wasn't out of earshot. Of course," he added, "she'd had quite a lot to drink. Let's begin with the Frosts; there seems to be a red herring looming across their trail. Yeah," he interpolated hastily in response to Bim's look, "I know about Mary Frost—salt of the earth and all that. I like her myself. Bim and I'd a lot rather she wasn't in this. But it's her own fault she is in."

"Walter, you know Mary goes around with Em's crowd mostly on account of Ted. He won't mix with the people she really cares for—cultured, quiet people—and she pals with the other kind to keep him contented. Not, of course, that she isn't fond of Em and the others."

"All right, Miss Fitch. The fact remains that she does pal with that gang and now she's into this with the rest. Well, then, she makes a great show of being willing to come through with all she knows—and turns around and gives us a lot of hokey when, when someone else is pretty sure to give the show away, she confesses. That lady hasn't told all she knows; not by a lot."

"If she's stood for so much from that worthless husband of hers, why did she get all hot and bothered when he made eyes at the Baroness? What did they—Mary and Ted—row about so bitterly that he rushed away and left her to get home alone? Why is she so worried all at once about what he might do when he's drunk? That boy had been drunk before and no one ever heard of her throwing a fit about it.

"But this is different, Wally." "Certainly it's different; this is one of the times when the thing that always may happen does happen."

"Then there's Ted who won't answer questions. Why not? He's a swaggering idiot but he knows very well that this is no time for swank. He won't talk because he's got something to hide—that's what."

Something To Hide

"Ted Frost probably has a lot to hide. But surely you don't think for a minute—"

"That he shot the Baroness? Of course not. Why would he? But he was in a fury with his wife and he was drunk."

"And the Baroness in Mary's shawl looked like Mary. And if he thought he saw Mary going into the garden—going to meet someone—he's wildly jealous of her. Not that he's ever had the slightest cause," Bim finished slowly.

"We're only supposing," Walter said quickly. "Don't take any of this too much to heart. Ted might," he added. "To continue with out supposing—not have been thinking of Mary at all. He might have thought it was another woman going to keep a date—a woman who interested him more than his wife did."

"But—but he hasn't so much as glanced at anyone for ages! Mary said herself that for a while."

"We're just speculating, honey. And so we may as well consider what might happen if your friend Mary suddenly went crazy with jealousy herself. You don't believe that possible? Remember what Reynolds said when the meek reason to believe her pet grief had stood her up to keep a date with another woman and that she thought she actually saw the other woman slipping out to keep the date. And, going off her head as I said, that she got her hands on a gun?"

Bim laughed at that. "You could say those things about anyone, my dear. You could ask what would happen if anyone in the world went crazy. But it wouldn't get you anywhere."

"Maybe not. Only the motive is there."

"Anyway, the jealousy motive lets Laura Allan out. She couldn't care enough about anyone to lose her head."

"Couldn't she?" Walter asked somewhat cryptically as he nevertheless wrote Laura's name after Mary's. "She cares about something enough to be about going into the garden according to Imogene."

"In this case, yes. I'm—sort of old that Mary thought she saw Laura Allan with the shawl on, wasn't it?"

"She saw the Baroness really. She understands this now."

"But Miss Allan was in her mind. Else why didn't she think of the Baroness in the first place?"

"I don't quite see—"

"Never mind, kid. Then there's Bunny Baird—nice, quiet fellow. Mildly Bohemian but nothing rough. Almost a hermit in a way even if he does entertain his lady friends at two in the morning while inquisitive gardeners prowled about his diggings. Europe once a year—Paris, London, Berlin, Vienna, the Orient. What's he like, when he's in Europe? Who does he know? What's his connections? What sort of person is he when he's away from Kingcliffe?"

"Why not look him up, sweet thing?" "We're doing that, my dear. But you see how it is, Bim; when you begin to speculate you drag the whole shebang down around your ears."

"Of course there's what Mrs. Briggs overheard Bunny say to Laura when he was calling at her apartment. 'If I can't have you no one else will.' Though I don't think that sounds a bit like Bunny Baird. Not a bit. And some way or other I can't imagine him sneaking in to call on Laura that way when I happen to know the old Judge is very fond of him."

"Perhaps Mrs. Briggs jumped at conclusions. Well, that's the lot of them."

"You're forgetting Bob and Millicent, Wally."

"Oh, Bob and Millicent! Pair of kittens."

"But while you're supposing. You've got to be fair and impartial."

"They're both out on all counts—opportunity, motive, initiative, everything. Ted had to be got to be dragged through the case. I know what you're thinking," he conceded when she smiled. "That Bob might have been set off by the woman's snubbing Millicent. It's reasonable in a way, only he wasn't out of her sight all evening; Millicent treats him like a baby."

"But after they left Eagle's Nest? Of course Millicent would be for Bob if she had to; a wife's testimony, you know."

Fine Sifting

"Oh, they'll go through the cleaner with the rest," Walter answered rather wearily. "But there's no use wasting time on them. I've got to be moving along. Bim; inquest's over at De Selkey's at one. See you later?" he asked hopefully.

"And how?" she answered, glad that his grouch was forgotten. It was then that young Steve Collins who was Kingcliffe's official milkman dropped into the station house and contributed his bit toward the murder mystery.

Young Steve Collins came in with his wire basket filled with bottles of milk and put one on the floor behind the police desk. Bim often laughed at Walter and called him a baby because of what she designated his "milk habit," but there were occasions upon which the quart of milk delivered at the station house stood him in lieu of meals when he was unable to take time for more substantial food.

Young Collins wore his cap on the side of his head and a flower through the band and he had a wide, pleasant grin which he flashed impartially at the policeman and the girl reporter.

"Big doings around here, eh, chief? Well, I'm having a hunch that gang up there," he jerked his head in the direction of Pine Hill, "is due for a bust. They ain't cived nohow, I'm saying to myself. Three and four o'clock in the morning—that's them. Guess they don't never go to bed. I ask you?"

"What time do you make your rounds up there, Steve?" Walter asked, interested.

"Sometimes later, sometimes earlier; depends. Been getting up on the mountain about 3 o'clock this Summer, what with delivering over to West Kingcliffe first. I see 'em beating it around in their cars and I'm thinking like I said, 'Yep, that gang's due for a bust'—they sure are."

Commercial Aviation Gains In Rocky Mountain Region

in the state, including fifty-six transport pilots, thirty-two limited commercial and fifty-nine private pilots.
Colorado is leading the seven states of the Rocky Mountain region with twenty airports, involving an investment of about one million dollars.
Capt. Charles W. France, general superintendent of Midcontinent Air Express, stated recently that air travel in and out of Denver has shown an increase during the first sixty days of this year that indicates the year 1931 will break all records for air transportation.
"Based on our estimates on the 400 per cent increase in 1930 over 1929, and 62 per cent increase in January, 1931 over December, 1930," Captain France declared, "we are anticipating and preparing for, the greatest rush of business in our history. Air mail is increasing daily, inquiries for air travel information is increasing daily, and our planes are flying very close to capacity loads at the present time."

"Commercial air transportation is well out of the woods of financial depression, and is recovering with a rapidity not noticed in many other lines of business."

Horse Dealer Sent To Jail On Cruelty Charge

Nathan Suszica, 65, of Mountain Heights, N. J., was committed to Bucks County Jail yesterday for a period of 30 days by Justice of Peace James Laughlin, on a charge of cruelty to animals.

Suszica is a dealer in horses and has been traveling through this section for the past 50 years. During the early part of last week he started from Philadelphia with two horses. It was his intention, he says, to take them to Trenton.

When the aged man and his animals reached the Foley farm in Bensalem Township, he found the doors of the barn open and he placed his horses in the stable and placed a lock on the door.

Leaving the Foley farm Suszica disappeared for two or three days and his animals were without food. The horses were taken from the Foley barn and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals placed in charge.

When Suszica returned he was much incensed over the fact that his horses had been taken. He was placed under arrest and committed.

FATHER OF CONSTITUTION FRIEND OF WASHINGTON

Had Few Superiors in Field of Government and Politics

URGED IMPOST LAW

One of the significant dates in the month of March is the birthday of James Madison the "Father of the Constitution." Madison was born on March 16, 1751 at Port Conway, Virginia, and the 180th anniversary of his birth is commemorated in a statement from the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Unlike the military services of Washington and his army officers, Madison's contribution to the establishment of the United States was spectacular in no respect. He was essentially a statesman and in the field of government and politics he had few superiors. In this sphere his services have proved to be of everlasting benefit to this country.

At the University of New Jersey, now Princeton, Madison demonstrated a prodigious capacity for work and he was graduated at an early age. He was deeply interested in history and religion, and his studies along these lines formed a broad basis for the sound judgment which characterized his participation in public life.

Madison's first venture in politics came with his election to the legislature of his own state. Here he revealed the results of his previous study. He evinced a pronounced antagonism toward any kind of religious intolerance and advocated the absolute separation of church and state. When a bill was introduced providing that "all men should enjoy the full toleration in the exercise of religion," Madison so effectively opposed it that the clause was changed to read, "all men are equally entitled to the free exercise of religion."

As a member of the Continental Congress in 1789, Madison strongly advocated the establishment of an impost law as part of a Federal tax system. No one realized better than he the need of a strong central government. He recognized that the weakness of the Confederation lay in its inability to raise money, and he was among the foremost to urge the adoption of efficient revenue measures. He opposed the issuance of paper money and his masterly reasoning against the evil was responsible for Virginia's escape from the craze which swept the country in 1786.

The Annapolis Convention which resulted later in the Constitutional Convention in 1787 was Madison's proposal. Of all the delegates to the latter, Madison was perhaps the best informed. He had made an exhaustive study of the history of confederacies and federal unions, and he was ready with his own suggestion which was known as the Virginia Plan. This was adopted as the basis of the Federal Government which was outlined in the Constitution.

When the Constitution was ready, Madison worked with Hamilton and Jay in the preparation of the series of pamphlets called "The Federalist." These brochures were written to overcome the prejudice against the Constitution and to secure its adoption by the states. In Virginia, this great instrument was vigorously opposed by Henry Lee and Patrick Henry, but Madison argued so strongly in favor of it that he secured the Old Dominion's ratification. Madison was defeated in his bid for the Senate largely because of the efforts of Henry. He was, however, elected to the House where he offered twelve amendments to the Constitution embodying the salient points of a bill of rights. The first ten of these amendments were adopted in 1791.

Madison left the House of Representatives and retired from public life at the close of Washington's second administration. Retirement in the strictest sense, however, was impossible for him, and he attacked the administration's neutrality in the war between France and England. The Alien and Sedition Acts in 1798 led to the fall of the Federalist party and brought about the election of Jefferson to the Presidency. Madison had been Jefferson's friend for years, and now he accepted the portfolio of Secretary of State.

After serving in complete harmony with Jefferson, Madison, as the logical successor to the Sage of Monticello, was elected to the Presidency.

Madison's career was one of illustrious service to his country, and Americans everywhere may well recall his contribution to the United States.

State News of General Interest

STATE COLLEGE, Mar. 20—(INS)—Men at Penn State college have "a streak of masculine crudeness" and are "terribly self-centered."

And, gentlemen of the campus, that is the consensus of coed opinion, as shown in a survey conducted by Florence C. Davis, of Wilkesburg, a junior at the college.

To the scathing denunciation that "you rarely find a Penn State man who converses on art or music" there was no dissent—and very little enthusiasm. Coeds agreed that there are a few snobs among the men at Penn State but wound up with the blanket assertion, after dissection, that "Penn State men are O. K."

To which the men responded: "Uh huh."

COLUMBIA, Mar. 20—(INS)—Free-

Advice to Girls

By NANCY LEE

DEAR NANCY LEE:

We are two girls who always like to ask you questions, which seem to give us a lot of trouble.

1—If a girl goes to church with her boy friend, is it proper for him to give her collection?

2—Does a fellow think as much of a girl if she smokes or if she doesn't?

3—Is it proper to always invite a boy friend in, after coming home from a show, etc?

4—After coming home from a dance, is it proper to have a lunch of some sort?

5—What are some proper gifts to give to a boy friend you have not been going with very long?

Thank you,
IKE AND MIKE.

IKE AND MIKE: 1—Indeed she should. Giving is a personal thing and has nothing to do with anyone else. 2—That is an individual matter and depends on the viewpoint of the young man entirely. 3—It depends what hour of the night it is, and whether this procedure has the approval of the girl's parents, who, I sincerely hope, would act as chaperones unless an elder brother or sister will agree to fill the bill. 4—That again is a matter for individual preference. There is no etiquette about it. If one is hungry or thirsty one eats or drinks. That is all there is to it. But wise people eat sparingly at night. 5—Books, especially on some subject dear to the recipient, are always welcome and in good taste; so is a scarf, or a pen or pencil or some good handkerchief.

Angel Food Cake RECIPE

- 1 cup sifted cake flour
- 1 cup egg whites
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1 1/4 cups sifted granulated sugar
- 3/4 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/4 teaspoon almond extract

SNOWY, moist, fit for the angels, that's the way angel food cake comes from an electric oven every time you bake it. There are no air currents in an electric oven. This keeps a cake from getting dry. It makes a moister cake . . . more deliciously tender . . . and one, of course, that will keep fresh longer. Then . . . there's no such thing as luck one day and failure the next. Whether you bake, broil, roast or fry . . . the exact time and temperature controls of an electric range enable you to be an expert cook.

EASY TO OWN

PRESIDENT QUINN HAS LARGE SQUAD

This is the eighth in a series of 16 stories covering 1931 prospects of National and American Baseball League Teams.

By Joe Cashman
(INS Special Correspondent)
PENSACOLA, Fla., Mar. 20.—President Bob Quinn, of the Boston Red Sox, is this year depending on a new manager, a new coach and forty-three ball players, one of the largest of Major League squads, to pull his club out of the American League cellar for the first time since 1924.

The new pilot is John "Shono" Collins, of Pittsfield, Mass., and the new coach is Rudy Hulswitt, of Louisville, Ky., a great shortstop fears back with the Phillies.

The material these men have to work with consists of all of last season's Sox with the exception of Johnny Heving, catcher; Phil Todd, first baseman; Bill Regan, second baseman, and Cedric Durs, outfielder, and more than a score of newcomers.

In addition to Milt Gaston, Danny MacFayden, Ed Morris, Horace Lisenbee, Jack Russell and Ed Durham, the efficient regulars of 1930, the club now has Wilsey Moore, former sinker ball artist of the Yankees to bolster the pitching staff.

With these eight fingers and such promising youngsters as Bob Eline, Frank Bushey, Pat Simmons, and Sumner Collingswood fighting for the other two places, the Red Sox appear all set in the box.

The catching will be done by Charley Berry, Harold "Mudd" Rael and Eddie Connolly.

Bill Sweeney is being counted upon to be the regular first sacker.

Tom Winsett and Al Van Camp are battling for the right to act as Sweeney's understudy.

Bobby Reeves, third sacker for the past two years, is being tried at second. He can field the position but will have to improve in hitting to keep Otis Miller, a veteran who can hit better than he can field, from beating him out.

Hal Rhyne and Rabbit Warstler, regular shortstops last season, are meeting with plenty of opposition from Olie Marquardt, a rookie from Nashville.

Jack Rothrock, who has played all nine positions during his four seasons with the Sox, is being groomed as the regular third sacker.

Earl Webb is the only veteran outfielder sure of his job. Either Russ Scarrett or Tom Oliver, the other 1930 regulars, is likely to be beaten out by little Gene "Half Pint" Rye, slugging wonder from Waco, Texas, when that young man gets around to playing again. He is suffering from two broken bones in his right wrist received when he fell in a practice game.

Miss O'Hara Speaks At Women's Meeting

"Obstruction" seems to be the slogan of the day.

Various bills now under consideration in the legislature were gone over by the Newtown woman, the talk taking in the onslaught against the direct primary, prohibition question, consideration of decrease in cost of motor vehicle operators' license, higher rates for billboard space, etc. Mrs. Stuckert asked that it be taken into consideration that "those whom we send so lightly to Harrisburg, and blame so easily, have many conditions of mankind, and many classes of people to consider."

The history of the election code, and several parts of the legislative program were gone over briefly.

The third speaker introduced by Mrs. Cooper, was C. A. Williams, who discussed the juvenile court bill, "The juvenile courts are for the salvation or reformation of the child, thus being unlike the criminal court which is for punishment." The well-known case of a 14-year old boy recently tried for murder, and now starting to serve a life term in the state penitentiary was one of the cases cited, which similar cases it is desired to have taken to juvenile courts; from which point the younger element might be guided aright, and their minds diverted into better channels than is the case where they, during terms of service, mingle with hardened criminals.

Mr. Williams asked support of the women in urging the representatives from various districts to finish this proposed piece of legislation started over 100 years ago.

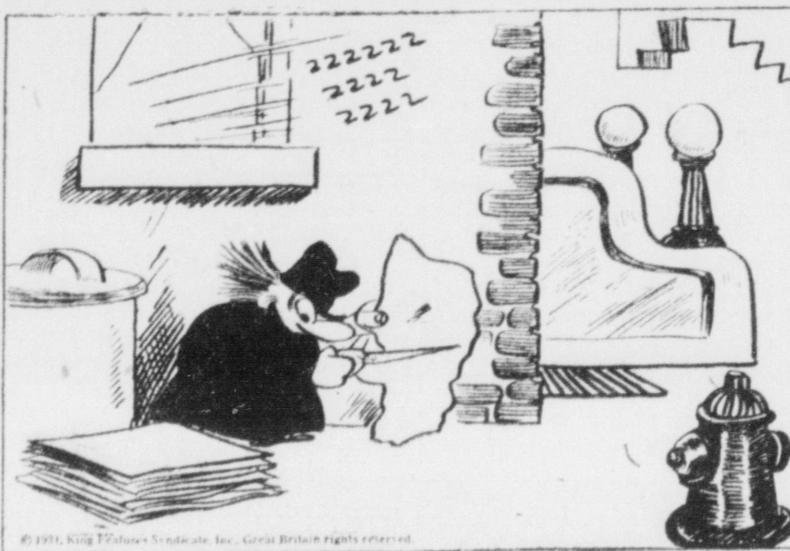

This session was one of the several sectional meetings which will be held in different parts of the county within the next few months. Valuable information will be dispensed at the sessions that are proposed.

Four musical numbers were presented during the program. Solo by Mrs. Theodore Hansen were "The Lass With The Delicate Air" (Arnel), and "The Bowl of Roses" (Henley). The "The Bristol Travel Club trio sang "February," and "Rockin' in the Wind." This group was composed of Mrs. John Moyer, Mrs. Charles I. Bowen, and Mrs. Linton Martin. The accompanist was Mrs. Marburg D. Weagley, of Bristol.

Musical numbers presented were a soprano solo, "The Enchanted Glade" and "The Yellow Dog," Mrs. Charles I. Bowen; and a baritone solo, "A Sunny Life" and "A Song of Fellowship," Mr. Percy G. Ford.

Mr. Keith Rosser accompanied the soloists.

The balance of the evening was spent in dancing and cards. A five-piece orchestra furnished music throughout the evening.

Booze Club Trial Takes Sudden Turn

After the trial had developed its new angle Detective Russo closely questioned McClarity if the place was being used as a "beer drop." "Not to my knowledge," was the reply.

"Well, I have heard rumors to the effect that the club was being used as a 'beer drop' by a certain individual. If such is the case I advise you to quit it."

Card Party Attracts Quite A Large Crowd

A very successful card party was held last evening in No. 3 hose house on Swain street, which was given by the Third Ward Athletic Club. ## Bensalem Board May Close Three Schools

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 20.—The closing of three schools and the daily transportation of the pupils who have been attending them to the Bensalem Township High School here is being seriously considered by the Bensalem Township Board of Education. It is proposed to close the Flushing school, Hermitage and Trevores buildings within the near future.

In order to do this considerable additional transportation facilities will be necessary and today the Board of Education is advertising for bids, which will be received by the secretary up until 7 p. m. on April 17th.

At a special meeting of the Board held Wednesday night the Board of Directors elected Jacob Scheffele, of Siles, as president, W. L. L. Williams, Cornwells Heights, vice-president; Percy Underwood was named a member of the Board to succeed Andrew J. Reichle, who resigned.
